

ADOLESCENT SERVICES

Overview

Our trained clinicians at Charleston Center love to work with adolescents. We understand how difficult it is to be a teenager in today's world and how hard parents strive to provide safety for their teenage children.

In a world where violence is abundant and drugs and alcohol are easily available, it is important for parents to have a place to provide their teenagers with what they need to overcome these challenges.

Whether a teenager is already dealing with serious consequences because of drug use or a parent suspects that there may be a problem, we can help. We have helped hundreds of families, and we are here for yours too.

We offer a variety of services including:

- Groups that meet up to four times per week
- Individual counseling
- Family therapy
- Multifamily therapy

Financial

Regardless of your financial circumstances, you can get the help you need. We accept private insurance and Medicaid, and we also arrange affordable payment plans. Clients who meet federal poverty guidelines may qualify for assistance covering up to 100% of the cost of many services.

Our Process

When you first call us, we will schedule your teenager for an assessment. During this process, your child will be asked questions about his/her use of drugs, educational achievements, family life, relationships with peers, as well as other topics. A counselor will also want to talk with you, the parent or guardian, to gain added awareness about your own perceptions of your teenager's behavior.

After the assessment has been completed, the counselor will meet with the treatment team regarding the specifics of your teenager's situation. The counselor will then call you with recommendations for services and any referrals if necessary.

Family Involvement

Family involvement is important, and we want your teenager to receive the type of service that will best meet his or her needs, while at the same time providing you with maximum support.

We look forward to working with you and your family.
